TROLLHEIM - The Witch of the Water Spirit's Marsh

TROLLHEIM is a bestselling and award-winning book series for voracious readers aged 8-13. In Norway alone, the books have sold 100,000 copies. The author, ARNE LINDMO, has won two awards voted on by thousands of young readers, and the illustrator has received a prize for her illustrations from the Ministry of Culture. TROLLHEIM consistently ranks on Norway's bestseller lists. In 2024, Arne Lindmo was one of the best-selling authors in Norway across all book genres. The story has universal appeal, can be enjoyed anywhere, and possesses excellent cinematic qualities

TROLLHEIM - The Witch of the Water Spirit's Marsh is the eight book in the series and the blurb goes like this:

Halloween is to be celebrated with a class party at the old crow's castle, and everyone is looking forward to it. But strange things begin to stir. Black cats attack, and a crow with green eyes spies on them. Only Adam, Tara, Tobias, and Zira can stand against the darkness that has crept into Trollheim—but they must hurry, or this year's All Hallows' Night may twist into a nightmare from which no one can escape.

Author ARNE LINDMO was born in Norway in 1981. He worked for 10 years as a middle-grade teacher before he made his debut as an author. While teaching, he would think up a beginning and an end for a story every day that he could tell the students if there was time during the school day – and there often was! The children loved Arne's stories! So, as you understand, he knows his readers well, and now that he is a well-established, bestselling, and award-winning author in Norway, he travels around the country still meeting middle-grade students who now love his books.

Illustrator IDA SKJELBAKKEN was born in Norway in 1979. Her illustrations in the TROLLHEIM series have been very important for the fantastic reception and enormous success the books have achieved in Norway. The children say that they love her style. They think it's cool, realistic, and mature. Not visually childish like many of the other books they read, they say.
